PART OF EGYPTIAN TROOPS IN SUDAN MUTINY

Rumors Of New Shoals Bids Fill Air

ADMINISTRATION IS SAID TO HAVE PLAN TO OPERATE PLANT

Senator Underwood Is Putting Finishing Touches On Bill

HOOKEE OFFER BEING PUSHED

Large Power Combines Continue Efforts To Get Project

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—With the convening of congress only a few days off, the air is filled with reports of numerous offers to develop Muscle Shoals, which will be the first subject up for legislation. To fill the breach caused by Henry Ford's withdrawal, Senator Underwood today put the final touches to a bill which he has drafted and which will have the endorsement of the southern delegation in the senate.

Senator Underwood said he regarded the property as mainly a source for national defense and its main purpose should be to produce nitrogen for ammunition and fertilizer. He indicated that he favored the leasing of the property and if a satisfactory offer could not be obtained, the government should operate it. It is believed that his bill will carry these features.

The administration is understood to have a plan in mind that would provide for the disposition of the property with a governmental recapitulation clause.

On the other hand, Senator Norris, author of the bill now pending on the senate calendar, asserted the government already is in business at Muscle Shoals to the extent of $200,000,000 and it should stay in business if it expects to get anything like a fair return on its investment.

The Norris bill, he said, would assure the government the return of its entire investment.

Several of the bidders are reported to be dickering with farm organizations, with the hope of getting their support if they agree to incorporate in their proposal Henry Ford's fertilizer provision.

Several large power companies also are known to be anxious to get possession of Muscle Shoals and their representatives are reported to be in Washington, engaged in an effort to turn sentiment in their direction.

A group of southern power companies now have an offer pending for the leasing of Muscle Shoals.

Elon H. Hooker, another bidder for the property, has held numerous conferences with officials here during the summer months, and it is understood that he is prepared to change the details of his proposal to meet their objections. He conferred with Senator Underwood, and it is understood he was assured the Hooker-White-Atterbury offer could be accepted under the Underwood bill.

Slayer Of Parents Declared Insane

(Associated Press)
TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 28.—Frank McDowell, slayer of his mother, father and two sisters, has been adjudged insane and removed to the state hospital at Chattahoochee. The transfer was made from the state prison farm at Raiford, where he had been sent on November 25 to serve a life sentence.

A lunacy commission in Bradford county adjudged him insane.

DR. OREAR TO SPEAK

Dr. Claude Orear, pastor of the First Methodist church, will address the young people of the Ninth street church at 7 o'clock with the object of organizing an Epworth league.

UNIQUE PROGRAM AT SCHOOL GYM

Parent-Teachers and Concert Band To Be Helped

What has been described as a "program unique" will be presented Monday evening in the gymnasium of the Albany high school, when an entertainment will be given by the Albany-Decatur concert band and the Albany Parent-Teacher association, the proceeds to be used in the worthy work of both organizations.

The program will be a varied one, it was stated, consisting of a musical program by the band and readings, sketches and pantomime numbers by well known local artists.

The Albany-Decatur concert band, under the direction of Mr. Marston, has become one of the best musical organizations in the state and a splendid program and a varied one has been arranged for Monday evening. It will include a clarinet solo by Director Marston.

Miss Gladys Bernardi will give a reading during the evening and a short play will be presented by Misses Geneva Eubanks and Louise Almon. The "Jellies" will give several musical numbers, the "men" being impersonated by Misses Davis, King-solving and Chunn, and the "girls" by Misses Alexander and Blackwell. Mary Elizabeth Webster and Gwendolyn Reams will present a sketch.

A pantomime will be given by Dan Simeral, Edward Spurlock and James Morrow.

A "Clown Dance" will be given by Misses Sara Blackwell, Mildred Bell, Geneva Eubanks, Virginia Humphrey, Louise Almon, Amy Lee Speake, Helen Moore, Lura Mae Covey, Peggie Davis and Dealva Alexander.

GULF STATION AT ATHENS IS BURNED

Fire early this afternoon destroyed the Gulf Refining company's oil and gas station in Athens, $20,000, according to information received here. The spectacular blaze at one time threatened a large area of the city, but the flames finally were brought under control.

Former Wife and His Physicians To Be Summoned

SPECIALIST IS MAKING TESTS BIRMINGHAM DOCTOR WILL GIVE OPINION ON MENTALITY

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 28.—His former wife and several physicians from Georgia and Virginia, who have treated the defendant on various occasions, will probably be called upon to testify to the insanity of Robert D. Edwards, slayer of his 19-year-old sweetheart, Miss Imogene Lee, when he goes on trial for his trial for his life next week, according to Fred Woodward, defense attorney.

Dr. B. L. Wyman, local specialist in mental diseases, appointed by the court, is making daily tests to determine the mental condition of Edwards and should he declare the defendant sane, his former wife and physicians who have treated him in the past will be called to testify to the insanity of Edwards, according to Woodward.

In a letter received by Mr. Woodward, Thomas Edwards, brother of the defendant, stated that he had arranged with Mrs. Edwards and the Georgia and Virginia doctors to come to Birmingham, if necessary, and that they are now awaiting the decision of Dr. Wyman.

The brother also wrote, Mr. Woodward said, that he has letters written by Miss Lee, tending to show that she was familiar with Edwards' past and these, Woodward stated, also will be presented during the trial.

Although Edwards has been arraigned for trial Monday, before Judge William E. Fort, in the criminal division of the circuit court, Woodward announced Friday that he would ask continuance of the case until January, because Felix Alley, attorney of Wainwright, N. C., employed by relatives to assist in the defense, would be unable to come to Birmingham Monday. If continuance until January is denied, Woodward announced he would ask that the trial be postponed until December 8.

OKLAHOMA AREA SWEEP BY FLAMES

Hose Line Of Thousand Feet Laid By Fire Fighting Crew

The Albany fire department answered two calls on Wednesday morning. At 4:30 a. m. a cow shed on the property of Adolph Held, now rented to R. W. Watson, burned at 1119 5th avenue South.

At 10:30 a call came from Oklahoma, a negro section south of Albany. Fire starting in an empty building quickly spread, and was only stopped after it had destroyed eight houses and damaged another.

A strong wind was blowing from the south, carrying sparks over adjoining buildings. Firemen placed upon the roofs of these houses swept the sparks away and beat out the young flames, sometimes using chemicals.

WISCONSIN SOLON AND 'SUPPORTERS' READ FROM PARTY

Resolutions Bar Group Of Insurgents From Republican Parleys

SHARP "REBUKE" FROM REGULARS

Future Assignments To Committees To Be 'Regulars Only'

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and three of his principal supporters in the senate, practically were read out of the Republican party at a conference of senate republicans.

The conference adopted a resolution by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, under which Mr. LaFollette, Senators Ladd and Frazier, of North Dakota, and Brookhart, of Iowa, will no longer be given Republican places on senate committees, or invited to attend future party conferences.

The Reed resolution follows:

"Resolved: That it be the sense of the conference that Senators LaFollette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier be not invited to future conferences and be not named to fill any Republican vacancies on senate committees."

The resolution will not disturb present committee assignments, Republican leaders said but will serve as an expression of the view of the conference, to be considered by the committee on committees, when the question of filling vacancies comes up.

Car Operated As A Bus Is Burned

A Buick six car belonging to E. R. Lawrence, and operated by him on the Hartsville to Cullman bus line, was burned near Cullman on Wednesday morning.

Mr. Lawrence was driving the car himself, when the car caught fire on the first trip Wednesday morning. It was said the fire started from crossed wires, and extinguishing the flames without water was impossible. The car was said to have been insured.

Funeral Is Held For P. V. Berry

Funeral services are announced for today for P. B. Berry, 44, carpenter, who died Thursday at the family residence at 724 Sixth avenue, West Albany. Mr. Berry had been ill for about two years. He is survived by his wife and several children. The services are to be conducted by Rev. M. M. Caldwell, pastor of the Church of God of South Albany, with interment at Roselawn Park.

HUNTSVILLE SCOUTS COME HERE FOR FIRST AID DEMONSTRATION

Fifteen boys belonging to the Huntsville Boy Scout Club, and led by Scoutmaster Baxter, arrived in Albany at 5:30 Thursday afternoon for a demonstration in life saving and first aid before the local scouts.

The outfit encamped on the Woods lot on Grant street, and were ready for the demonstration at 7:30 o'clock. The performance took place at the Presbyterian Church. The principal workers on the team were James Baxter, J. D. Champion and "Micky the mascot."

The team demonstrated life saving, first aid, different kinds of lifts, and methods of fixing broken limbs. The purpose of the demonstration was to aid first and second class scouts to pass tests, and to urge troops here to have a first aid team.

THANKSGIVING DAY SERVICES ATTRACT BIG CROWDS HERE

Special Sermons Given By the Pastors In Local Pulpits

TWO CITIES ENJOY A REAL HOLIDAY

Family Reunions, Game and Auto Trips Also Feature the Day

With few exceptions the churches of Albany and Decatur held Thanksgiving services Thursday, and all reports agree that at no time in the past have larger numbers attended the special services. Not such large congregations were at church, as at the regular Sunday services, as the fine weather attracted large numbers of people into the open, many leaving the cities to visit friends and relatives. And quite a number of the lovers of sports, attended football games at Nashville, Birmingham and other points.

As a rule the church services were held in the morning beginning at 10:30 o'clock, in order that the worshippers might return home in plenty of time for Thanksgiving dinner.

The South Albany services for the Associate Reformed, Willoughby Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist congregations were held at the Willoughby Presbyterian church, the sermon being preached by Rev. William D. Barnes, pastor of the Ninth Street M. E. church, with Rev. A. N. Penland, presiding. At this church, as at all the others special Thanksgiving decorations greeted the worshippers.

The union Thanksgiving services for the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist congregations of Decatur were held at the First Baptist church, the auditorium being well filled with members of the participating congregations and visitors.

The sermon was by Dr. Claude Orear, pastor of the First Methodist church, who took as his text, the words—"What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits unto me. I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all His people." Psalm 116: 12, 13, 14.

Dr. Davidson Presides.

Dr. C. C. Davidson, pastor of the First Baptist church, presided and led the opening prayer. The scripture reading was by Dr. James D. Wallace, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The choir of the three churches co-operating rendered a splendid musical program under the direction of Mrs. Walter H. Todd. The sermon of Dr. Orear was in part as follows:

"The words think and thank come from the same root. The thought-"

JAMES A. FORMAN NAMED KEY MAN

Will Visit the Different Churches Of County During Year

Representative James A. Forman, who is the moderator of the Morgan County Baptist Association, has been appointed key-man, to present the new program of the Baptist church leaders of Morgan County. Mr. Forman is expected to visit the different congregations of the Baptist faith throughout the county as way opens.

The election of Mr. Forman came Wednesday, following deliberations of the executive committee of the Morgan County Baptist Union held at the Decatur Baptist church.

The members present were: T. M. Dix, chairman, a number of the Baptist ministers of the county, W. R. Spight, J. H. Crow, George Russell, E. W. Bussey and others. During the discussion of the proposed quota of Morgan County Baptists for the Troy Orphanage, Mr. Bussey made a donation of $100. On next Wednesday a special meeting of the executive board will be held in the Twin Cities for the purpose of electing a county field worker to succeed Rev. E. E. Weaver, who is now a student in Howard College.

DONATIONS MADE TO THE SOCIETY

Thanksgiving Day Gift Made Thursday For The Institution

Without exception, the churches of the Twin Cities, holding Thanksgiving services Thursday, took special collections, all the money contributed being turned over to the Benevolent Society. Perhaps the largest donation of a single congregation was that of St. John's Episcopal church, where close to $38, was given.

At the union service in Decatur close to $39 were given, and at the union service at the Westminster church exactly $35 was donated.

Some additional money and materials, were given for the Benevolent society during this week at business places in both Albany and Decatur. Miss Emma Openhagen, treasurer of the society, promises an official report as to the total amount of donations to the Society during this Thanksgiving season.

BRITISH SOLDIERS OPEN FIRE HALTING SERIOUS OUTBREAK

British Forces Flash Bayonets Again In Streets Of Cairo

(Associated Press)

CAIRO, Nov. 28.—Platoons of the eleventh sudanes at Khartoum today mutinied and attacked the military hospital, killing one British and two Syrian doctors.

British troops fired on the mutineers, who suffered several casualties. Further details of the mutiny are not yet available. It is known, however, that a certain restlessness existed in the eleventh battalion last August.

The big meeting of the students of the Al Azhar university, called for today, passed off without incident.

British cavalry and infantry again paraded Cairo this morning and final reconnaissances were carried over the principal towns. All were reported quiet.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The mutiny of the Egyptian troops at Khartoum cannot spread sufficiently to endanger the British position in the Sudan, nor is it likely to have any influence against the British there, it was stated by an official this afternoon.

It was pointed out that the battalion at Khartoum constituted the only force of Egyptian troops now left in the Sudan and that the British military there were strong enough to keep the situation in hand.

The battalion in question was to have left Khartoum today in the wake of the first battalion which moved out of the Sudan yesterday.

The Egyptian embassy in London said today that it was regarded the outbreak among the Egyptian troops at Khartoum as not due to any influence outside the battalion involved and not officially with the troops in Cairo.

One of the British demands upon the Egyptian government after the assassination of Sir Lee Stacks was the evacuation of the Sudan by all the Egyptian military forces there.

A Cairo dispatch last night said that when the acting sirdar gave the necessary orders for the evacuation, the Egyptian officers and troops declined to obey and offered resistance declaring they would not leave unless they received orders from the Egyptian government.

French War Debt Funding Discussed

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Informal discussions have been instituted between representatives of the French and American governments, relative to a basis for funding the former's war debt to the United States.

Ambassador Jusserand has held several conferences with Secretary Mellon, during which the whole French situation was gone over. It was made clear at the treasury today, however, that Mr. Mellon's talks with Mr. Jusserand had been made informal.

Curtis Is Selected Republican Leader

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Charles Curtis, senior senator from Kansas, was selected today as successor to the late Henry Cabot Lodge, as republican leader in the senate.

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, was elected vice chairman and party whip, a post which has been held by Senator Curtis since the Republicans gained control of congress in 1918.

Independents Wind Up Season With a Victory Over Leighton High; Score 43-0

The Louisville & Nashville Y. M. C. A. Independents wound up their first season Wednesday afternoon when they administered a crushing blow to the Leighton High team that stopped over on the way to Birmingham. The Independents spent the latter three quarters of the game amassing a total by smashing the line, running the ends, aided with a splendid aerial attack.

The Leighton team started with a rush but after 3 downs in the middle of the field they were forced to kick and the Independents started their first hostile movement toward the goal line with smashing off tackle plays and sending Gustin and Braswell around the ends. The march was slow and the quarter ended before the Independents could push the oval across. In the second quarter the Independents refused to notice any other interference from the Leighton team and began an irresistible offensive that netted two touchdowns before the half ended.

The Leighton squad, rested a bit between halves, drove over two first downs in the beginning of the second half but failed to get any further with their attack. They kicked and the Independent offensive started again. The third and fourth quarters were almost repetitions of the third with Leighton receiving the kickoff and being forced to kick. They fumbled frequently on a deceptive crossback formation and invariably it was an Independent who recovered the ball.

Ellison handled the team in veteran fashion and displayed some wonderful offensive and defensive ability. Ellison once reached into the air and grabbed a twenty yard toss from Braswell and raced twenty more across the last line for six of his team's points. Braswell and McRee featured in line smashing tactics and a ded in piling up their team's score. Gustin contributed a beautiful 25-yard race around his own left end on a fake kick for a touchdown. One of the peculiar features of the game was the fact that the Independents failed to win a single try for point the ball being blocked with only one exception when the Leighton club was offside.

The entire line played jam up football on the defensive and offensive. Kirby and Speer contributed much to stopping the advance of the invaders while Walker and Byers worked well in the guard positions. McAbee and Bowen played their usual good game at the tackles. McAbee took Watson's place at the last minute at right tackle and was usually to be found tossing the Leighton backs for losses behind their own line.

The Independents wound up their season Saturday with having won four tilts, tied one and lost one game. They started late in the season and much of their success has been due to the efforts of the local Y. M. C. A. in backing the team at the start and the work of Manager Arvidson. The Rahm Clothing Company has also helped out to a great extent through the season and the interest has been appreciated by the members of the team.

It is reported that the Albany High school lost to the Coffee High school at Florence on Thanksgiving afternoon by a score of 28-0. Hopelessly outweighed and inexperienced the local team was unable to get started and the Coffee boys duplicated their feat of last year in downing the hopes of a title held by the local school.

less are the thankful. They are the ignorant, the guilty of insensibility like a beast. Thanksgiving services are an expression of intelligence. Of the 10 lepers Jesus healed most of them were dull and unfeeling. Only one took time to think. Nine took their healing as a matter of course like a tramp picking up money. They felt no obligation. All was chance and fate. But to thoughtful persons all blessings come from outside of self.

"I shall think outloud of the blessings of the past year. We are thoughtful. Our songs, reading the Scripture and the sermon are expressions of thanksgiving in the hearts. I congratulate you pastors on the good turnout and on your being at another thanksgiving service. You have traveled 196,000,000 miles around the sun since the last service of this kind. The old vehicle on which you ride ran so smoothly you scarcely realized you were moving. No comet, a traitor of the sky has brushed into us and we are back again at autumn.

"I am thankful for the little engine that kept pumping health into my body during the past year. The moment the heart stops you say good by to all other on earth and enter the vast unknown. Then you people do not look hungry. Think of the millions who have never seen the day in which they had enough to eat. Then too, despite the drought prices are good and there is plenty. Many have recouped and paid their debts.

No Good Past

"We hear much of the "good old times." There "ain't" no such animal. An archeologist in Babylon unearthed an inscription in which a man said Babylon is going to the dogs. Luther said: "I am sick of the day in which of Respect to the Memory of Late Bro. E. M. Odum, Who Died Nov. 9th, 1924.

Albany Lodge, No. 491, A. F. & A. M. of which he was for many years a valued member, express sorrow at his passing from us. We recall how he loyally stood by the great and noble principles of our beloved order, and by word and deed exemplified in his daily walk and conversation the Tenets based on Holy Writ upon which foundation our Fraternity is built.

Therefore be it resolved that we have lost a true and tried brother, who in the providence of our Supreme Grand Master of the Celestial Lodge above has we truly believe bid him an entrance to the higher and better existence with Him, where he may serve through the ceaseless years of Eternity never more to suffer, and in joy and peace receive the rewards of a faithful servant.

Be it further resolved that we do deeply sympathize with the family who so keenly feel his departure from them. We pray that the abiding presence of our Heavenly Father, in comfort and blessing may be with them from day to day, until they shall one by one go to meet him in the home beyond the skies.

Be it further resolved that we shall miss him from our ranks, we would emulate his kindly deeds, and remember his cheery words.

Be it resolved that a copy of these resolutions be published in the Albany-Decatur Daily, a copy be sent under seal of the lodge to the family, and a copy be kept for record in the lodge.

A DAILY PRAYER—We pray Thee, to help us use all our sense and all our senses in an effort to learn wisdom from Thee, lest at the last, we disappoint Thee, and damn our own souls.

About the only thing all Americans agree on is that a man by the name of John W. Davis was defeated for the presidency.

Members of one class who should send their names to an employment bureau, those who belong to the lame duck society.

Goats are put on the left side, as they were never known to be satisfied on the right side.

Those who are satisfied with fiction have very little friction, but those who insist on the facts are seldom out of the middle of a bad fix.

TWIN CITIES ARE GLAD THAT HOLLAND-BLOW PLANT WILL STAY

The Twin Cities had much to be thankful for Thursday, but the decision of the Holland-Blow State company to re-build its plant announced in Wednesday's issue of The Daily, was cause for much rejoicing.

The plant is one of the oldest industrial plants in this section. For many years its payroll has stimulated business in Albany-Decatur and neighboring communities. For many years its officials have been real contributors to the civic life of the Twin Cities, and our citizens are glad, indeed, that the plant will remain here.

The value of such a plant is hard to estimate in dollars and cents. In addition to its regular payroll here, the company has scattered hundreds of thousands of dollars in this section for timber and for labor. It is a distinct asset to the cities and local citizens are grateful to Mr. Blow and his associates that they have decided to remain with us.

THANKSGIVING

The whole world is beginning to emerge from the smoke and wreckage of the Great War; a more hopeful spirit is prevailing all nations, the world is growing better with signs of health and peace and prosperity, and these are grounds for thanksgiving on the part of all peoples.

This general outlook upon the world is one cause why we should join in thanksgiving unto the God of nations that in His goodness is leading the great human family to become increasingly conscious of its common life and needs and is rolling it through the shadow of the globe into a better day.

The year has been one of unmeasured prosperity and goodness. The harvests have reaped boundless fields of golden grain and our barns are full. Employment has been general and business has run at full tide. Peace has prevailed throughout all our borders, and no pestilence or great calamity has befallen us. It is of these material conditions and goods that we first think in connection with this day as it was originally observed with these things in view.

But there are deeper grounds for thanksgiving in the social and moral and spiritual life of our people. It need not be said that there are wide shadows of evil and some very black spots in our national life, but these are mostly such as are common to men. Really, America is sound to the core on the essentials of integrity and truth in our civil and moral life. There is no cleaner spot or more decent people on earth, and this is something to be thankful for, however, much we have of which to be ashamed.—Meridian Star.

MORE AND WIDER ROADS

Many will recall the prediction of Roger Babson to the effect that large numbers of automobiles would defeat themselves, so to speak, by filling the streets too full. Mr. Babson said the street cars were apt to come into their own simply because business people would make better time in a city on them than in cars. It is the case now and has been for years that very slow progress is made in large cities by means of automobiles. The plea now is that cars must have more room. In this connection the following quotation is of interest, despite the fact this author is said to be in the employ of a company that sells road building materials:

Automobile manufacturers who for years have seen the increased production of cars confound the prophecies of saturation of the automobile market should begin to realize that a new element has entered the field and that it behooves them to prepare for it. Heretofore the prophets of production saturation have based their prophecies on the supposed inability of the public to find any more money for automobiles. But the money continues to be found, and it will continue to be found probably for a long time if the prospective owners can find any place to run their automobiles in comfort and with pleasure. No one sees the congestion in our city streets and on our county highways without realizing that the saturation point of automobile production is not going to be measured by the purchasing power of the people but by the capacity of our highways. Unless more and better highways are built and more and wider streets are opened the use of the automobile will become a diminishing utility or pleasure. The lesson to the automobile manufacturer should be plain. Hitherto he has fought every effort to make the automobile pay for any road or street construction. Maintenance he was willing to support because obviously the car wore out the road, but construction he held was the duty of the whole public and not that part of the public that operated motors. As a theory that may still be reasonable; but if the automobile manufacturer reads the signs a right he will see that practically he had better do all he can to help get new roads and streets because sooner or later—and very soon near our crowded centers—the demand for automobiles is going to be seriously diminished by the simple fact that there will be no place to run them.

AMERICA HAS LARGE STEWARDSHIP IN THE MODERN WORLD

The power and influence of America the world over is increasing at a rapid rate. Many can easily remember that not until after the Spanish-American war was this country considered one of the great world powers. But today nothing of any consequence takes place in any part of the world without the knowledge of America and many times the consent of this country is asked.

America influences other countries in many ways, but most profoundly in the realm of finance. Not through governmental action but through the individual business concerns is the influence of America felt. Support of American business men made the recent German loan a success, the amount sought being greatly over-subscribed. American steel interests are said to have brought about concord and co-operation between the French and German steel magnates. The Morgan interests are said to have influenced the French into balancing their financial budget. And it is common knowledge that many months ago, when the French franc began to decline very rapidly, the Morgan company checked that tendency and now the franc has a good value. It was an American plan, named for Vice President Elect Dawes, which is expected to bring settlement of the world war indemnity due France from Germany.

All these international activities are directly and indirectly of real interest to every American. In a large sense the American government is responsible for the world-wide activities of American citizens if they act unfairly, serious trouble may result. If the great ventures of the steel men the Morgans and the other financial leaders turn out well, the country at large will benefit, but if they prove disastrous, the entire country will suffer.

America is deeply allied with the rest of the world, in a financial way especially. As American interests prosper, so will the interests of business in many parts of the world. This country manages to stay out of the league of nations for the prevention of wars, but it is in league indirectly at least with all the leading nations of the world in a financial way.

THE BUSINESS "BOOM" HAS ARRIVED AND SHOULD STAY

For months the signs have pointed to a revival of business that would approach "boom" proportions, and now the business boom is here. This does not mean, of course, that all business houses have all the business they wish or can handle, or that business improvement has become "booms" in all communities and all cities. Some parts of the country have not yet felt the full effect of the new business era, but they will feel it, for the "business boom" is in full force in the big financial and business centers and quickly will spread to all outlying districts.

We get our panics from New York, just as we get our fashions from there, the difference being that it takes panics but a little while to become general while fashions move more slowly and do not reach some sections for a year after they have appeared in New York, "fresh from Paris." We also get our business booms from New York, and they do not move so quickly over the country as do panics, so that while New York for two or three weeks has been enjoying what amounts to a business revel, other cities West, North and South have not yet felt the urge to revel in business activity. But it is coming. All authorities agree that the "boom" is on and that it is spreading.

It often is a question if a "boom" is a good thing. The answer depends. If the "boom" applies to a town with inflated prices for real estate and an effort carefully generated, to unload, as happened in many towns of the West and in the South, some years ago, it is a bad thing, for a collapsed "boom" leaves a town much worse off than before. But if it is a "boom" in business, born of confidence and optimism, and with demand as its basis and easy money to help it along, then a "boom" is a good thing and will last as long as demand continues, optimism is maintained and money is easy.

The indications are that the awakened business activity now so pronounced in the East, and which is rapidly spreading and already is felt in Anniston and other Southern cities, is a substantial business revival, and that it will last. It is a "boom" only in the proportions it has assumed in the East and is in no sense a "boom" of the inflated kind, that is likely to be punctured when the excitement wears off.

The nation, according to the belief of conservative and observant financiers and business men is on the eve of the greatest business and industrial activity it ever has known. Optimism appears general, and where there is optimism there is something to justify it. The nation-wide business revival now on has much to justify it and much reason for continuing indefinitely. The year 1925 should be America's best for business.—Anniston Star.

I live. The world is so wicked, Calvin said: "As I contemplate the future it appals me. I cannot see how the world can be any better. The secretary of Henry VIII wrote that wood was very scarce as so much had been used burning heretics. Even the governor of the Virginia colonies wrote 'Thank God we have no public schools and no printing presses. They scatter heresy. God protect us.' Even that sweet singer Toplady who wrote 'Rock of Ages,' said the old fox (John Wesley) should be tarred and feathered. We recall the 'good old days' when they burned witches in New England. No old person was safe. Just fifty years ago when a man stood up to preach there was someone present of another denomination to take him to task. There were no 'good old days.' This is the best day. We live under the white flag of prohibition. Men still drink but not as much.

"Our public school system is the best ever. Men are taught to reason out problems. The schools have a great function. They should teach the futility of war. We should not waste the resources handed down to us. Since 1914 we've become prodigal. We wasted $180,000,000 and 10,000,000 lives. We thank God for our dear ones, for the countless steps of wife and mother, for the man of the house who toils to earn the money. He shares his part of the problems and there is no end to his labors. We thank God for our children—rays of sunshine which has blessed us and all the added work and cares they make but sweeten life. We thank God for other men who toll that all may enjoy the blessings of life. We know bread comes from God but many people had a part in bringing it to us. A thousand people had a part in bringing the comforts of our tables to us on this day.

The Gospel was the foundation of our nation but people are forgetting it. What shall we render unto God. "I will take the cup of salvation. I will become a Christian. I will live the Christ life today and call upon the name of the Lord. I will pray. The prayer man is the thankful man. I will pay all my vows unto the Lord, in the presence of all His people. As a Presbyterian I will keep on persevering. As a Methodist I will quit falling from grace. As a Baptist I will quit backsliding."

At the Thanksgiving service held at the Westminster church for the Westminster Presbyterians, the Central Methodists and the Central Baptists, Dr. James D. Hunter, pastor of the Central Methodist church, in the course of a moving and inspiring sermon, called attention to many valuable considerations, as to the true nature of men and women, as related to praise and thanksgiving. The minister said that while some philosophers and the cynical poets often disregarded praise and appreciation that the great masses of the people had always been thankful and full of praise for their Maker.

An unusually large congregation faced Dr. L. F. Goodwin, the pastor of the Westminster church, when he opened the service a few minutes after 10:30 o'clock, and announced the first musical number.

As always at the Westminster church, the music was unusually good. The regular choir of the church assisted by choir members from other churches, led the congregation in the hymns sung and the choir sang some special numbers, including two anthems. Mrs. George Jackson presided at the organ.

Dr. Goodwin Makes Opening Address. As the host of the congregation, Dr. Goodwin made a few introductory remarks preceding the formal prayer by Dr. W. P. Reeves, pastor of the Central Baptist church. Dr. Goodwin said that Thanksgiving was the one religious occasion recognized by the officials of the American nation and of the several states.

Following the earnest and inspiring prayer by Dr. Reeves, Dr. Hunter arose and announced his text from Psalms 107-21, 22.

"Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness and for His wonderful works to the children of men. Let them sacrifice the sacrifices of Thanksgiving and declare his words with thanksgiving."

The speaker said that all through the ages the religion of the true God, had been one of joy and thanksgiving. He declared that that fact Christianity was a singing religion was most significant, and that the other religions needed no more to condemn them, that to say the truth of them—that they are not singing religions. It was declared that the followers of Mohomet, are of a sad countenance.

It was declared that optimism and not pessimism is felt by normal people, that those living closest to nature and to God are cheerful; and look upon the bright side of things. "Pessimism has never been a popular creed," declared the preacher, who added that the "optimism of the many should overrule the well reasoned pessimism of the few."

The fact that the scripture emphasizes praise as a duty was stressed. It was declared that the solidarity of the early Christians made their faith very attractive to the world at large.

In this connection the speaker referred to the scripture reading as given by Dr. Goodwin at the opening, in an effective manner.

The joy of the lost caravan men, when the way is found, was described, as was the joy of the liberated prisoner. The gratitude of the freed slave and of the sick restored to health, were referred to with deep feeling.

Dr. Hunter quoted the celebrated English preacher, Watkinson, who had said in effect that victory may be symbolized by 'palms of victory' and also by the 'weeping willows of human sorrow,' the speaker teaching that consecrated defeat may be turned into joy and thanksgiving.

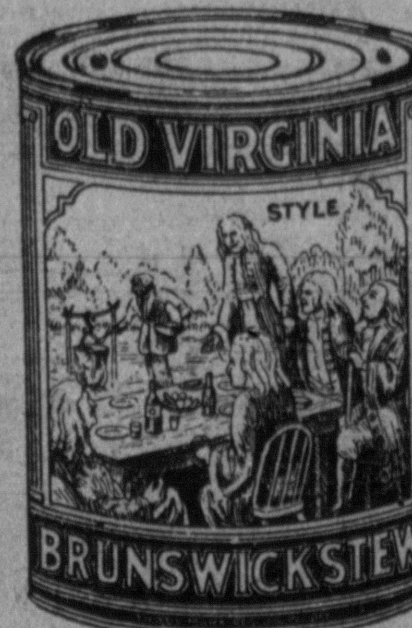

"The only way to insure joy when in affliction is to cry unto the Lord," declared the preacher.

Dr. Hunter said that the soul food of joy, was best found and enjoyed "as you go to lift and aid the fallen." Near the close of his sermon Dr. Hunter gave illustrations showing where those who placed appreciation above pleasure and ambition win. It was declared praise inspired the best deeds and love of pleasure the meanest deeds.

EIGHT BUILDINGS BURNED

Eight houses were destroyed by fire, a negro settlement several miles south of the Louisville and Nashville R. R. shops Wednesday night. The fire is said to have originated in an empty dwelling. Its origin is unknown. Some of the buildings were owned by business men of the Twin Cities. It is said very little insurance was carried on any of the houses.

OLD VIRGINIA BRUNSWICK STEW

It does not matter how you go by wagon, car, or train; carry Old Virginia Brunswick Stew with you.

At home, on the trail, in the woods at the lake, on the mountains, it is the same safe, delicious food for a good dinner. It saves the housewife from standing over a hot stove all day.

A can is enough for a small family. It is always fresh and sweet and appetizing, in a sealed container, ready to serve. There is a stimulating flavor, a zest, a tantalizing goodness, a surprise, something new about it. ASK YOUR GROCER.

Touring Car Burns On Nashville Road

The large touring car of W. C. McGuire, of the Twin Cities, was destroyed by fire between here and Nashville early this week. The fire flashed up without warning from the engine, and before Mr. McGuire, who was driving, could secure aid, the flames had done their work. It is said the machine originally cost $5,500. Mr. McGuire carried $1,200 insurance, reports state. The local man was on his way to Nashville to look after the repair of some radio machine fittings, and he had a considerable store of them in the ill-fated car. The fittings were saved. One of the employees of Mr. McGuire is said to have been following him touring in a Ford and sought to give assistance but without avail.

AMUSEMENTS

When you see a particularly villainous appearing person in Richard Walton Tully's screen version of the Rex Beach novel, "Flowing Gold," the First National picture now showing at the Princess Theatre today, the mean hombre with whom Milton Sills, as Calvin Gray, has the altercation in the pool hall, don't be frightened. He is really Jules Cowles, a perfect gentleman, highly educated, and without his make-up not hard to look at.

Cowles was born in Farmington, Conn., and educated at Yale. He is an accomplished writer and will publish a book in the spring. He is an

New Way to Stop Night Coughing

Those who have suffered the tortures of sleeplessness due to continual coughing at night, and who as a result often feel utterly worn out and useless during the day, need no longer permit their systems to be weakened and their vitality sapped by this distressing ailment. For through a very simple treatment the trouble can be stopped almost at once, and people often get their full night's rest undisturbed after the very first trial.

Here is the method: Simply get a bottle of the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery from any good drug store. Then to-night before retiring take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. This prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals the soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which is the real cause of the cough. So your throat is left wonderfully soothed and cleared of irritating gatherings, you can sleep soundly and restfully, and the cough is usually gone in a very short time.

Dr. King's New Discovery is a remarkable remedy for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, sore throat, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, laryngitis and bronchial asthma. At all good druggists. Ask for

A GOOD LAXATIVE

Black-Draught Recommended by an Illinois Lady, Who Says It Helps Her—"Fine for the Liver."

St. Elmo, Ill.—"I have used Black-Draught for three years," says Mrs. J. W. Boyd, a well-known member of this community. "I was visiting a friend who had used it for some time. I was in need of a laxative and I had a burning in my stomach. I was constipated. She gave me a dose of Black-Draught and it helped me, so I used it from then on. It certainly benefited me. I think it is fine for the liver, too. I am glad to recommend it. One day our pastor was visiting us, and he said his system seemed clogged and asked me to give him something to take. I gave him Black-Draught. He was much pleased with the results and bought a package, himself."

Constipation forces the system to absorb poisons that should be thrown out, causing pain, discomfort and tending to undermine your health. Black-Draught helps to relieve this condition by acting on the bowels, and by regulating the liver when it is torpid, thus helping to drive out many poisons in an easy, natural way.

Don't take chances! At the first indication of constipation, take Black-Draught. Costs only a cent a dose. Your local druggist, or dealer, sells Black-Draught. NC-158 old-time stage favorite, having played five years with Augustin Daly, in Shakespearean repertoire, and for the past eight years has been identified with the screen, principally in heavy roles.

Some of his best-known screen performances have been in "The Bar Sinister," with Edgar Lewis; in "The Ne'er-Do-Well," with Thomas Meighan; "The Idol of the North," with Dorothy Dalton; "The Love Bandit," with Doris Kenyon, and "A Fool and His Money," with Eugene O'Brien.

In "Flowing Gold" Cowles plays the part of a gunman of northern Texas, who has been hired by rival oil interests to do away with Calvin Gray, played by Milton Sills, and as it develops has his work cut out for him, for Sills proves a crafty operator himself.

You Can Taste Its Purity!

A dainty white cake—baked with Valier's Dainty Flour! Can't you just taste its delicious purity?

For Dainty is made from only the rich centers of the choicest soft winter wheat. It is always the same, and no phosphate or other adulterants ever spoil the purity of its natural flavor.

This choice wheat costs a premium. It makes Dainty cost a little more than ordinary flour—but the flavor of your baking is worth the difference.

To make your baking taste noticeably better—use Dainty! You can always depend on its purity.

THE JABOT FRILL RETURNS

Dainty and Softly Becoming It Decks Many Dresses

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

WITH the introduction of new necklines we see the appearance of flattering collars and cuffs, and, most important of all, we see the reappearance of the jabot frill. All women know how generally becoming this pleated or ruffled bit of dress adornment can be, and the new mode is welcomed by everyone who appreciates its softness.

The two afternoon frocks sketched here offer admirable examples of the effective use of the jabot frill.

The dress at the left is essentially youthful in effect. It is a very simple affair of heavy tan chambray, made with long sleeves, a Dutch collar and turned-back cuffs. The finely pleated panel which drops straight down the front is made of gold tissue cloth, and the tissue cloth reappears to form the outer layer of the collar and cuffs. The material of the dress makes the underneath layer of collar and cuffs, which is cut slightly larger than the tissue cloth addition so that it appears around the edges.

The other dress is a straight slim affair of black satin. It is belted and the only trimming consists of frills of white pleated crepe, appearing down the front of the dress and on the sleeves.

This Tan Chambray Frock Has a Finely Pleated Gold Tissue Panel.

What Parents Can Do to Aid in St. Vitus Dance

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY children have the "fidgets." They can't stay still a minute. Seemingly they are living examples of perpetual motion.

Emotional, highly-strung, nervous children are likely to have all sorts of disagreeable experiences. They awaken at night, screaming at the tops of their lungs. This is due to "night terrors."

Such children have frequent crying spells. They complain of endless numbers of pains and aches. They are cross and irritable. They may be undernourished and anemic.

After a while these little folks appear to grow awkward. They drop things, upset water glasses and otherwise show failure of proper muscular control.

The next thing observed is some sort of twitching of the face muscles or of the muscles of the arms or legs.

These symptoms may mean nothing more than an unstable nervous system. They mean that the child has a mild form of St. Vitus Dance. In the severe form the constant and pronounced muscular contractions prevent the child from dressing or feeding himself. Understandable speech may be impossible.

Almost invariably in chorea the heart is far from normal. Whether this is the cause of chorea or whether the nervous symptoms and the heart trouble come from a common cause, is a question.

Before chorea appears it is usually the case that the child has had rheumatism, scarlet fever or some other acute disease.

These diseases in children commonly strike in the autumn months, the age period when chorea is met—from five to fifteen years.

It is decidedly important to have every child inspected frequently enough to make sure there is no focus of infection. Diseased tonsils, and teeth, adenoids, intestinal fermentation, failure of complete kidney action—any one of these may produce poisons or conditions which may lead to chorea or some other equally serious disturbance.

It is not enough to give drugs to control the nervous symptoms. The thing to do is to seek out the cause of the ill health which is responsible for the weakened and sensitive nervous system.

Every child should have such a survey. Fresh air, lots of sleep, simple food and plenty of pleasant recreation without excitement—these are important factors, not only in the avoidance of chorea, but for the upbuilding of a strong body and a reliable nervous system.

Answers to Health Questions

ANXIOUS BOY. Q.—What will make the eyebrows thicker?

A.—What is good for falling hair? 1.—One per cent yellow mercuric oxide ointment will make the eyebrows thicker if a little is rubbed in every night.

2.—For full particulars, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and restate your question.

MISS H. V. Q.—Is it harmful to curl the hair with an electric curling iron?

A.—Yes, if the iron is too hot and it is done too often.

MRS. G. R. Q.—How can one make the hair darker?

A.—What do you advise for pimples?

3.—How much should a girl of 16, 5 feet 4 1/2 inches tall, weigh?

4.—What is good for a dry skin?

A.—Nothing but a hair dye will make the hair darker, and this is not advisable.

2.—For full particulars on this subject, kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kerable

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29.

An interesting and eventful day may be looked for, judging by the friendly positions of the powerful, so-called malefics, Uranus, Saturn and Mars in sextile aspect with Luna, presaging removal of old obstructions and congestions, stimulating to new enterprise and initiative and opening up opportunities involving important change, removal or journey. It is time for action, but there is in the employment of others are warned not to merit reproach or censure, although the matter is trifling.

Those whose birthday it is are under excellent planetary auspices for an eventful and prosperous year. There is presage of a sudden change, removal or journey, incident to the breaking up of old stagnant and obstructing situations, and the new connections and enterprises should bring gratifying success. A child born on this day may be clever, industrious, persevering, enterprising and be well respected and liked, all of which should contribute to its success and prosperity.

How You Can Keep Slender and Beautiful by Bending

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

ALL of us have noticed how much more graceful the movements of a slim, shapely woman are than those of the woman who has allowed herself to grow fat and clumsy.

There is something so charming about the natural figure—which is the slender figure—that I cannot understand how any woman can let herself grow fat and awkward in her movements without feeling that she is doing herself a grave wrong.

And you must understand that the natural figure is the slim one. There is a great degree of difference, mind you, between the figure which is slim and the figure which is fat. We were never meant to be thin to the point of emaciation any more than gracefully and she makes a pretty picture as she does so. Every movement seems to be a pleasure to her, as indeed it is.

Which of the two would you prefer to be like?

Bending, as I have told you before, is one of the best possible ways to achieve the easy movements of the thoroughly supple person. You become supple and limber through bendings and your movements are graceful.

Now the thing for you to do is to have a number of bending exercises in your mind, so you can run through them at a moment's notice in the morning when you get up or at night when you go to bed.

Here is a brisk, speedy exercise that will be of much benefit to all of your muscles, and which will induce limberness to such a degree that your everyday movements will become more of a pleasure to you because you will find that you are doing them with more grace and charm.

Stand erect, with your hands together, your chest out and chin in. Now, stoop quickly from your waist without bending your knees, and touch your left ankle with your right hand.

Straighten up and bend again, just as quickly, touching your right ankle with your left hand.

Repeat rapidly until you become tired.

You will be able to keep this up longer as you get in practice. You will be delighted with the added grace and limberness it brings.

Why Is Mother Graham Terrified and Secretive?

WITH the feeling strong upon me that my mother-in-law's mind had been affected by her fall, I turned to the nurse and Mrs. Durkee.

"Mother Graham wishes to speak to me alone," I said a bit diffidently. "Oh, of course!" Her fluently agreed, although I saw curiosity shining in her eyes, and she hurried from the room. But the nurse stepped imperturbably to the bed, and felt the elder woman's pulse.

"She may talk to you for a few minutes," she said, "but if she gets excited, or appears weak, you must call me at once."

"You may depend upon me," I returned quietly, and as she in turn left the room, I stooped and kissed my mother-in-law's cheek. She did not appear to notice the caress. All her energy was in her fiercely watching eyes.

"Anything in My Power?" "Lock—the door," she whispered. I obeyed her and returned to the bed. Mother Graham put out a weak clutching hand and essayed to pull me down to a seat on the bed beside her. I humored her, and then she brought my head down so that her mouth was close to my ear.

"Nobody—must—hear," she whispered hoarsely. "Nobody can," I whispered back, and she sighed with patent relief. "I'm in terrible trouble," Margaret, she said, and though I felt that she did not mean her fall and its consequences, there was no alternative for me but to interpret it that way.

"I know, Mother," I began. "But—"

A look of absolute terror leaped into her eyes. "You know—," she croaked hoarsely, forgetting to whisper.

"I know," I said. "You know—," she croaked hoarsely, forgetting to whisper.

"I know," I said. "You know—," she croaked hoarsely, forgetting to whisper.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Rear-Seat Drivers

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

HURRAH—the victim of the rear-seat-driver has revolted at last!

A man out in San Francisco sued his wife for divorce the other day.

He said his wife had caused him great humiliation and mental suffering by insisting upon directing his every move when she rode with him in the automobile.

"She sat in the back seat," said the man, when he made his testimony, "and she told me when to start, when to stop, when to go slow and when to go fast, and," said the poor man, his voice rising to a cry of denunciation, "I have been a competent and experienced locomotive engineer for years! I've taken the overland trains over the Sierras in blinding snowstorms and never lost an hour, and nobody had to sit in my cab with me and tell me what to do—this being bossed in the automobile has got on my nerves and I simply can't stand it another minute."

"Give up the car? Well, I could do that I suppose, but why should I? It's my car, I bought it and paid for it and I like to drive it, why shouldn't I do as I please about it? Take somebody else out in the car and leave my wife at home? No, I don't want to do that. Besides if I ever tried to do it—well, I hate to think what might happen."

Tired of Being Bossed.

"No, I've always been fair and square with my wife and I want to be fair and square with her now. I want to get a divorce, maybe she can marry some man who likes to be bossed when he's driving a car."

"No, it isn't entirely about the car, this new idea of divorce of mine, I've had friends out with me in the car and they all ask me how in the world I come to let her boss me like that. I thought every woman did it, and now I've discovered that some men won't stand it and I've been looking back at my wife and I can see now that from the minute I married, my life wasn't my own at all, it was my wife's."

"She bossed the house and she bossed me. I couldn't wear the kind of clothes I liked or have the things I wanted to eat and if she was tired and wanted to go to bed, I had to go, too, whether I was tired or not. If she felt like sitting up and playing cards or going to a movie—my orders were cut out for me. No, she isn't a bad wife, she's a good manager, she's economical, she's a good housekeeper, she's good-natured, too, as long as you give her her own way, and she's a good-looking woman and knows how to dress—I'll say that much for her. She'll put on a neat little dress and a hat that didn't cost so very much, and make herself look better than some women in a hundred-dollar dress and a forty-dollar hat. She's a good cook, too—but there, I'm through!

"I wish her well. I hope she'll be happy—but I'm tired of being bossed. I'm going to be myself the rest of my life and—that's that!"

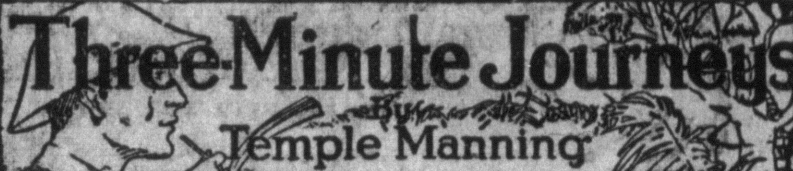

Does She Understand?

I wonder how that man's wife feels about it now. Do you suppose she begins to realize what she's been doing all these years, bossing and dominating till the poor fellow couldn't call his soul his own?

I don't believe she understands at all. She probably thinks that she is the most self-sacrificing, devoted, unselfish wife in the world—and so she may be—in her way. That's the trouble, it's always "in her way"—and never in anybody else's way, never for one single minute.

I suppose she'll pass the rest of her life feeling abused and unappreciated and she'll wonder what on earth John sees in some little goose of a girl who will make big eyes at him and tell him what a great, big, strong, wise, wonderful man he is—and let him drive his own car in his own way.

But somehow, I'm afraid I sort of sympathize with John—just a little.

WHERE FEW CLOTHES BUT MANY BEADS ARE WORN.

WE HAVE often been told that modesty is a matter of training and habit, but since we live among people who have the same habits in this regard as our own, we do not realize the truth of the theory.

Among our primitive ancestors, however, modesty demanded no more in the way of clothing than a loin cloth. And to this day there are many regions where clothing, as we know it, does not exist. For instance, in those parts of the Libyan desert that have not been influenced by the Arab civilization, the loin cloth remains the chief article of wearing apparel.

It is a strange fact, however, that the people who wear the fewest clothes are the most modest. To our Western eyes there would probably be something very strange in the sight of children dressed in nothing more than a little skirt of red, orange or a strip of cloth and wearing strings of beads about their throats and bracelets of ivory and silver on their arms. But there is nothing the least bit surprising to the people of the Libyan desert in this sight. It is quite the ordinary thing among them and they would not understand you if you said that they were immodest.

Strangest of all the adornments of the Libyan tribes is the nose bead. In order to wear this bit of jewelry the nose must be pierced just as the ears are pierced for earrings. These nose beads are apt to be bits of amber or coral or silver. Amber is quite popular and very highly prized among the Libyans. They will not part with it even for the much-prized gold. It is generally believed that the ornaments of amber found their way into the Sudan from Germany. But wherever these ornaments came from they are today by far the most popular part of the apparel of the Africans.

Two Libyan Girls.

clothes are prone to indulge their sartorial fancies by adorning themselves with jewelry of any and every conceivable variety.

We always associate the wearing of innumerable strings of beads and bracelets with more primitive civilizations. And this idea has a basis in fact. An African explorer tells a story of presenting some macaroni to the natives for food. To his surprise and amusement he soon beheld the strings of macaroni bedecking the throats of the young damsels. They saw in this strange, new food the possibility of more "jewelry" and nothing could induce them to eat it.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

The Art of Making Delicious Hash.

A GOOD home-made hash is not a tragedy, but a treat, if it is well made and attractively served. A good hash makes a good, substantial meal, and it is an economical way of using up cold meat, poultry, fish or game.

There are different methods used in hash making and many ways of flavoring. Fine hash is that which is made of carefully minced materials; a coarse hash is that in which the ingredients are cut up in cubes. The usual rule when meat and potatoes are mixed is one-third meat to two-thirds potato. A corned beef hash is occasionally flavored with a half cupful of cold minced boiled beets, or a half cupful of tart apple sauce. A fine hash is frequently served on toast with poached eggs over the top.

Coarse Beet Hash.

Cut up into half-inch cubes enough freshly boiled corned beef to make a heaping cupful. Add to the meat a cupful of cold diced boiled potatoes, a cupful each of cold boiled beets and yellow turnips, a lump of butter, pepper, salt, a dessertspoonful of sugar, and a very little water to moisten the mass; cover and steam it through, stirring frequently, and serve on a hot dish. Garnish with toast sippets. This is an old-fashioned hash, but it is hearty and good if directions are carefully followed in its making.

Veal Hash.

Chop fine enough cold cooked veal to make a cupful and a half. Chop enough cold boiled potatoes to make two cupfuls and mix with the meat, adding pepper, salt, a dessertspoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of butter. Cook until soft, then put in the frying pan, but in a finely minced onion and cook it until soft, but not brown; then put in the hash, adding just a small quantity of water to moisten the mass. Cover and steam well, stirring frequently; then turn over and cook to just the consistency liked. Serve on a hot dish with a garnish of deviled eggs.

Liver Hash.

Wash and boil a pound of calf's liver until very tender and chop it very fine. Boil down the liquor with a minced onion and celery leaves to a cupful, then strain it off. Put a generous lump of butter into the frying pan with the chopped liver, pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of sugar and the juice of an onion; add a little of the strained liquor to moisten and steam under cover until well reheated. Serve on a hot dish with a garnish of toast sippets spread with current jelly.

Fish Hash.

Flake fine enough cold boiled or broiled fish to make two cupfuls. Add two cupfuls of diced cold boiled potatoes that are rather under than over done. Season with pepper, salt, a generous lump of butter and enough heavy cream to moisten the mass—about a good half cupful. Dice and fry two medium slices of salt pork a delicate brown, then lift them with a skimmer and put in the hash, cover and steam it well, turning frequently, and just before lifting stir in the little cubes of pork. Serve on a hot dish with a garnish of toast sippets and garnish with sprays of fresh watercress.

Vegetable Hash.

Dice a cupful each of cold boiled potatoes, white turnips, beets and carrots, adding a cupful each of peas and finely cut string beans. Put a generous lump of butter in the frying pan and add a finely minced onion. Cook until soft, then put in the mixed vegetables, season with pepper, salt, a dessertspoonful of sugar, moisten with a half cupful of cream, cover and steam well, and serve on a hot dish garnished with toast sippets and deviled eggs.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl without a mother and am still in my teens. I am asking you for advice.

I keep house for my father and go to school at the same time. I do the best I can and he abuses me.

I am going with a young man who is very nice to me. He has asked me to marry him.

Please tell me whether to marry him or stay home and be a slave to some one who doesn't care for me? This young man has a house all furnished and has begged me to marry him. BETTY JANE.

BETTY JANE: Have you ever tried to find out what it is that makes your father angry? No doubt he has worries of one kind or another that trouble him during the day and you mistake his anxiety for abuse.

Talk the matter over with him as a dutiful daughter should, and you will find that he not only loves you with all his heart, but that your happiness and future are his greatest concern. Until you do so, put all thoughts of marriage out of your head, for in your desire to get away from home, you may have mistaken friendship for love.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am just out of my teens and have been going with a man for almost two years. He seems to think a lot of me, but he does not want me to go out with other men? Will you advise me what to do? BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: It is very unwise for a girl as young as you are to restrict herself to the friendship of just one man. You may enjoy each other's company very much, but in the event of a separation, you will find yourself without a single friend.

The more friends you have, the more varied and interesting your life is. Explain this to your friend and tell him that since you are not engaged, he has no right to make such demands of you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have gone out twice with a man who is six years my senior. The second time, he did not act in a way I thought he should and I told him that I could not excuse such conduct.

He begged me to pardon him and give him a second chance to prove himself a gentleman. I promised to do so.

Did I do the right thing? Would it be wiser to keep away from him? F. J.

F. J.: Yes, dear, you did right in giving this man a second chance. We all make mistakes, and where would we all be if we were never given a second chance—a chance to make good our mistakes?

If you continue to act in a dignified and lady-like manner, he will make his conduct match yours, and she closed her eyes for a second, then opened them with a grateful glance at me, and a pitiful attempt at a smile.

An Astonishing Demand.

"You're a good girl, Margaret. Now in the first place, I can't go to North Carolina with Leila and Edith. I must stay at home for a long time. You must fix it up with them."

"That will be easy," I promised her, trying to pierce the fog of bewilderment with which her words surrounded me. "You really won't be able to go when they do."

"Then," she went on, "about all things, you must not let hard know anything is wrong—anybody but Richard!"

"Of course not," I soothed. "I'll be very careful."

"You'll have to be," she retorted with a touch of her usual imperiousness. "Now the rest of what I want you to do will keep all but one thing. What day is this?"

"Saturday," I answered. "Was it to-day I fell?"

"Yes."

"Then—let me see— Yes, Tuesday morning I want you to bring me one hundred dollars without letting anybody in the world know you're doing it."

New York Letter

by Lucy Joanne Price

NEW YORK.—We must have holidays and celebrations in this city. If we can find righteous excuses, well and good. If not, then we must fall back on the wicked but picturesque men of our history, and celebrate their cause. It may not be wholly logical from a civic point of view, but—oh, well—it's a celebration, isn't it? Consequently, when a day dawned in the "Save a Life a Week" and "Eat an Apple a Week" and respect to some puritan ancestor, we celebrated the 225th anniversary of none less than William Kidd, the Captain Kidd of lurid tales. Mayor Hylan opened the anniversary celebration with a reception to the Captain Kidd committee, made up of writers and artists who fancied the pirate costume, and called at the City Hall, for the mayor to sign a pardon of the renewed Captain. They presented him with a pirate's cutlass and all was merry. Such an inspiration to our schoolboys!

A countess or a Baron may impress some circles of American society but they create not a flicker of interest among the taxi drivers. Aloysius Harvey, driving a brilliant and adventurous taxi, boldly had Countess Nell Jessamine Marie Desancton Doans arrested because she disputed his charge for a taxi trip. We may not always appear Democratic but down below the surface, we certainly are.

The first woman to become a full-fledged executive of a Wall Street banking institution has just been appointed. She is Miss Mary V. Andrews, who has been named assistant cashier of the Chase National Bank. There will be few fields left in exclusive control of the men of the country before many more years.

"Shipwrecked" is one of the most dramatically staged productions of the year, and in the course of ordinary dramas, omitting such magnificence as "The Miracle," of several years. It is melodrama with no pretense of disguising it, but like one or two of the other best plays of the backward season to date, it is enjoyable and thrilling to a degree that the sophisticated are not often willing to admit—but do in this instance. A ship burns on the stage of the Frazee Theatre before your eyes and the heroine's efforts to escape the villain succeed only at the last moment. A well balanced cast adds to the reasons why "Shipwrecked" is worth seeing.

A college chair named after a servant of the donor is unusual and I imagine unprecedented. Columbia University now boasts such a chair. Gen. H. W. Carpenter, a graduate of the university, has given $100,000 for a department of Chinese, to be called the Dean Lung chair of Chinese. General Carpenter went to China soon after his graduation and brought back Dean Lung with him as a servant. From him, he explains, he gained so much of true philosophy and of understanding of a great people that he has commemorated their association in this way. Another interesting fact is that General Carpenter considers that he saved the $100,000 which he has given by never smoking.

One by one the old joys go. Civilization takes its toll of pleasures. We can't even have monkeys with our grind organs in New York. I have wondered why these piquant creatures have virtually disappeared from our streets and why all that we get from a grind organ is its music, in a manner of speaking. I never learned until recently that the city's laws forbid them. Arguments from animal lovers who, I believe, didn't realize the enjoyment the monkeys themselves got from their street life, had their weight, but another element that worked against them was their wrongly applied talent. They could be taught to steal anything within reach—and reach most everywhere—and this they did, until their thievery became such a nuisance that they were forbidden the freedom of opportunity as found here.

She shrank back at that, for there on the poop sat Asad under his awning with Marzak, Biskaine, and his other officers in attendance. "Come," he repeated, "there is naught to fear so that you keep a bold countenance. For the moment it is Sheik Mat-check to the king."

"Naught to fear?" she echoed staring. "For the moment, naught," he answered firmly. "Against what the future may hold, we must determine. Be sure that fear will not assist our judgment."

She stiffened as if he had charged her unjustly. "I do not fear," she assured him, and if her face continued white, her eyes grew steady, her voice was resolute.

"Then come," he repeated, and she obeyed him instantly now, as if to prove the absence of all fear.

Side by side they passed up the gangway and mounted the steps of the companion to the poop, their approach watched by the group that was in possession of it with glances at once of astonishment and resentment.

Asad's dark, smoldering eyes were all for the girl. They followed her every movement as she approached, and never for a moment left her to turn upon her companion.

Outwardly she bore herself with a proud dignity and an unflinching composure under that greedy scrutiny; but inwardly she shrank and writhed in a shame and humiliation that she could hardly define. In some measure Oliver shared her feelings, but blent with anger; and urged by them he so placed himself at last that he stood between her and the Basha's regard to screen her from it as he would have screened her from a lethal weapon. Upon the poop he passed, and salaamed to Asad.

"Permit, exalted lord," said he, "that my wife may occupy the quarters I had prepared for her before I knew that thou wouldst honor this enterprise with thy presence."

Curtly, contemptuously, Asad could Asad so interpret it. The acknowledged presence of Sakr-el-Bahr's wife in that poop-house rendered the place the equivalent of his harem, and a man defends his harem as he defends his honor; it is a spot sacred to himself which none may violate, and it is fitting that he take proper precautions against any impious attempt to do so.

Rosamund sank down upon the divan, and sat there with bowed head, her hands folded in her lap. Sakr-el-Bahr stood by in silence for a long moment contemplating her. "Eat," he bade her at last. "You will need strength and courage, and neither is possible to a fasting body."

She shook her head. Despite her long fast, food was repellent. Anxiety was thrusting her heart up into her throat to choke her. "I can not eat," she answered him. "To what end? Strength and courage can not avail me now."

"Never believe that," he said. "I have undertaken to deliver you alive from the perils into which I have brought you, and I shall keep my word."

So resolute was his tone that she looked up at him and found his bearing equally resolute and confident.

"Surely," she cried, "all chance of escape is lost to me."

"Never count it lost whilst I am living," he replied.

She considered him a moment, and there was the faintest smile on her lips.

"Do you think that you will live long now?" she asked him.

"Just as long as God pleases," he replied quite coolly. "What is written is written. So that I live long enough to deliver you, then—why, then, faith, I shall have lived long enough."

Her head sank. She clasped and unclasped the hands in her lap. She shivered slightly.

"I think we are both doomed," she said in a dull voice. "For if you die, I have your dagger still, remember. I shall not survive you."

He took a sudden step forward, his eyes gleaming, a faint flush glowing through the tan of his waved a consenting hand without vouchsafing to reply in words. Sakr-el-Bahr bowed again, stepped forward, and put aside the heavy red curtain upon which the crescent was wrought in green. From within the cabin the golden light of a lamp came out to merge into the blue-gray twilight, and to set a shimmering radiance about the white-robed figure of Rosamund. Thus for a moment Asad's fierce, devouring eyes observed her, then she passed within. Sakr-el-Bahr followed and the screening curtain swung back into its place.

"Eat," he bade her at last. "You will need strength and courage, and neither is possible to a fasting body."

The small interior was furnished by a divan spread with silken carpets, a low Moorish table in colored wood mosaics bearing the newly lighted lamp, and a tiny brazier in which aromatic gums that were burning and spreading a sweetly pungent perfume for the fumigation of all True-Believers.

Out of the shadows in the farther corner rose silently Sakr-el-Bahr's two Nubian slaves, Abiad and Zalzer, to salaam low before him. But for their turbans and loin-cloths in spotless white their dusky bodies must have remained invisible, shadowy among the shadows.

The captain issued an order briefly, and from a hanging cupboard the slaves took meat and drink and set it upon the low table—a bowl of chicken cooked in rice and olives and prunes, a dish of bread, a melon, and a clay amphora of water. Then at another word from him, each took a naked scimitar and they passed out to place themselves on guard beyond the curtain.

This was not an act in which there was menace or defiance, nor cheeks. Then he checked. Fool! How could he so have misread her meaning even for a moment? Were not its exact limits abundantly plain, even without the words which she added a moment later. "God will forgive me if I am driven to it—if I choose the easier way of honor; for honor, sir," she added clearly for his benefit, "is ever the easier way, believe me."

"I know," he replied contritely. "I would to God I had followed it." He paused there, as if hoping that his expression of penitence might evoke some answer from her, might spur her to vouchsafe him some word of forgiveness. Seeing that she continued mute and absorbed, he sighed heavily and turned to other matters.

"Here you will find all that you can require," he said. "Should you lack aught you have but to beat your hands together, one or the other of my slaves will come to you. If you address them in French they will understand you. I would I could have brought a woman to minister to you, but that was impossible, as you'll perceive."

He stepped to the entrance. "You are leaving me?" she questioned him in sudden alarm. "Naturally. But be sure that I shall be very near at hand. And meanwhile be no less sure that you have no cause for immediate fear. At least, matters are no worse than when you were in the panner. Indeed, much better, for some measure of ease and comfort is now possible to you. So be of good heart; eat and rest. God guard you! I shall return soon after sunrise."

Diseases traced to constipation are many—get permanent relief with Kellogg's Bran

Why does constipation breed other diseases? Because it floods your system with dangerous poisons. And the longer you suffer, the more poisons accumulate. That is why constipation should be relieved at once.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. They know it brings results because it is ALL bran. And only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective in relieving constipation.

ALL bran—Kellogg's—sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It acts as nature acts. It makes the intestine function naturally and regularly. If eaten regularly, it will bring permanent relief in the most chronic cases of constipation—is guaranteed to do so or your grocer returns your money.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will like the wonderful Kellogg's flavor—so crisp and nut-like—so different from ordinary bran, which are most unpalatable.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. And by all means try it in the recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.
